Amy is a junior high school student. Today is a special day for her. Amy has been waiting for this day for a very long time.

39

Today is the first day of junior high school for Amy, even though she is filled with joy she is also very nervous, because she had heard rumors that most straight A students grades plummet when they get to junior high school, and she is a straight A student, her mother told her not to worry about it, so she just shook the thought of it away.

When she woke up the next day she had butterflies in her stomach, but she was almost late, so she didn't have time to think about it.

When she got to school she saw that everyone else was nervous, she saw a lot of her friends from elementary school, she felt a lot better, and after a few weeks of school there, to her surprise it wasn't that hard, she was still a straight A student.

Situation:

Your family is going to have an outdoor barbecue evening. This party may continue late into the night. Write a letter to your elderly neighbor, Emily Chen. Explain to her what will be happening, offer your apologies in advance, and invite her to join the party. You may begin your letter as follows:

Dear Emily

40 Me and my family will be having a barbecue tonight from four to nine o'clock, and we might be a little noisy, we know that you and your husband like going to bed early, and we also know that you enjoy barbecues in summer, so me and my family would like it very much if you would care to join us tonight, and we apologize for informing you on such short notice.

I heard your son, George is back from the military, and we hope he can join us too, you are welcome to bring any extra food you might have, but we will prepare everything, if you don't have time, maybe next time, we have barbecues every year, so be sure to let us know.

Yours truly,
Lauren

Amy is a junior high school student. Today is a special day for her. Amy has been waiting for this day for a very long time.

Today is the annual pie eating competition. She has been training her digestive system for the past year, so she is confident she'll come out as the champion this year.

The pie eating competition is a prestigious event held at Amy's school once a year. The contest has been named "The Pie War" due to the fact that contestants have performed devious feats to obtain the right to call themselves the champion, the simple action of eating pies can turn into the scene of a warzone.

Amy has been in second place for every Pie War so far. The only thing that stands between her and the trophy is the man people call "The Destroyer": Bobby Jackson. No one has yet been able to topple his record of eating 42 pies in ten minutes. Amy has come close in her training, but can she beat "The Destroyer"? I guess we'll have to see....

Dear Mrs. Chen,

I have been told to ^{in advance} inform you that next Friday will be our barbeque evening to celebrate my brother being promoted to chief of financial affairs at his workplace. The event might go on very late, so if we disrupt your work or sleep, we sincerely apologize.

If you don't have any plans for Friday night you can join us. "The more, the merrier!" is what my brother says. If you do come, all food and drinks will be on the house, courtesy of my parents. We would be more than happy to bring items of food that you enjoy as well, if you have anything in mind just write back or tell us!

No matter what you choose, we respect you and will make changes to our party if you have any dissatisfactions about our barbeque.

Yours truly,

Connor
