Amy and Sherry have been very close since elementary school. Now they go to the same high school and spend almost every weekend together. Amy promised Sherry that she would go to the movies with her on Saturday. After Amy made the promise, the most popular girl in school invited Amy to her birthday party at her house on the same day. Amy was thrilled to be invited and really wanted to go to the party. But Sherry did not receive an invitation. Now Amy has to decide whether she should cancel or keep her promise to go to the movies....

10. After knowing that Brian, the hottest guy in school, would go to the party, Amy made up her mind. She called Sherry and told her that she needed to work on the science project so she would not be able to go to the movies with her. Sherry sounded disappointed but she told Amy that it's okay.

Amy was so excited that she jumped out of the bed and started to look for the dress that she would wear to the party.

Finally, it was Saturday. Amy wore a baby blue dress that perfectly matched her skin color and an elegant silver bracelet. She looked just like an angel so every boy couldn't keep their eyes off her. Even Brian said "Hi." when she entered the house. Amy had never felt this happy for her entire life. She drank colorful soda with the cheerleaders and chatted with the gorgeous guys that she had never talked with before. When the party was about to reach the end, Brian invited her to the last dance. "Amy," he whispered "You are the most beautiful girl I've ever seen." Amy blushed and replied "No, you are lying." But he looked her in her eyes sincerely. "Be my girlfriend, Amy. You'll experience the joy that you could never imagine." Amy started to panic because she knew that she shouldn't betray her boyfriend, so she told Brian that she couldn't since she already had a boyfriend. Surprisingly, Brian said she didn't have a boyfriend. "Your boyfriend has been cheating on you with your best friend, and the whole school knows it." Tears started running in her eyes and her brain went blank. She ran out of the house and rush home.

Next Monday, when Amy went to school, she felt insecure and thought that the whole school was laughing at her. Suddenly, she felt someone touching her shoulder and she woke up. She looked at the clock, it showed that it was Friday morning. She took a deep breath and felt very thankful that it was just a dream. She called Sherry right away and told her "Hey! I'll see you at two at the movie theater tomorrow"
